

A rapidly growing national university has forged a partnership with Vanerum•Stelter Studio to re-brand their educational institution through the look and feel of furniture of their campuses.

University designers and Studio came together to develop resource center and reception furniture to be incorporated in the layout of numerous nationwide locations.

Through collaborative calls and meetings, Vanerum•Stelter Studio made engineering modifications and improvements to the designs of tech stations, reception desks, bookshelves and computer bars. Materials used: laminate, Corian, custom lighting and special wire management components. The joint designs were put in five test facilities and eventually became a standard for the nationwide university. Together, the university and Vanerum•Stelter created a design with professional, modern, and streamlined elements that integrate technology and inspire learning.

The user-friendly tambour door provides secure storage for printers and fax machines

Computer table provides adjustable monitors and secures CPUs.

