

A university with a strong historical legacy was renovating classrooms to create learning environments that are centered around teacher and student needs.

This Indiana university was renovating and upgrading technology support available in lecture rooms. They sought a teacher desk that truly met the needs of instructors. Lecture rooms are shared spaces. Instructors use laptops and need a limited amount of personal storage. They also wanted a standing height portion that would serve as a podium. The overall size needed to be compact and mobile.

Studio created a series of dual height instructor desks to present to the customer. The final solution is a product that fulfills the Vanerum•Stelter brand message of i3: interactive, integrated and inspiring. The project was such a success that it was added to the statement of line as a standard — “Rule”.
